

US Field Organizer for exciting new global campaign

Global Zero, an exciting new global campaign to eliminate nuclear weapons is looking for a US Field Organizer. The position provides a unique opportunity for an experienced organizer to drive a major campaign and make a real and lasting impact on domestic and international policy on this vital issue.

In recent months, the threat of proliferation and nuclear terrorism has led to a growing chorus of world leaders calling for the elimination of all nuclear weapons, including Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin and U.S. President-elect Barack Obama. This creates an unprecedented window of opportunity to get rid of nuclear weapons.

The Campaign includes a world summit in 2010 and a global online and grassroots campaign and a major documentary from Academy-Award winning producers; The effort is spearheaded by a group of world leaders from diverse nationalities, backgrounds and worldviews, including Jimmy Carter, Queen Noor, Sir Malcom Rifkind, Richard Branson, Chuck Hegel, Desmond Tutu, Michael Gorbachev among dozens of others.

We're looking for an enthusiastic individual who wants to break some ground in innovative global organizing. This is a position for an organizer or campaigner with a proven track record of working with grassroots networks and diverse sectors such as student, community-based and faith organizations.

Global Zero's US field organizer will be responsible for building a national field campaign, and developing and executing a field strategy. The field organizer will report directly to the campaign director.

Responsibilities will include:

- * Enlisting and engaging a large-scale and broad-based group of Global Zero activists and allies in the US
- *Communicating with individuals and allied organizations
- *Organizing actions and events
- *Maintaining information management systems
- *Identifying key organizing moments to organize to move the Global Zero agenda forward

Candidates should have:

- * Very strong organizational skills
- * Ability to develop and manage programs and budgets, develop and implement plans
- *Excellent verbal and written communication skills

- *Proven ability to work well with diverse groups of people
- * Passion for the cause of Global Zero
- * Enthusiasm for national and international travel
- * Experience as a full-time organizer
